

SENATOR CROW AGAIN IS G. O. P. TATE CHAIRMAN

Present Officers, Never Defeated, Call For Record Party Vote.

PENROSE IS RE-ELECTED

No Change in Personnel of State Committee; All Being Re-chosen With Chairman Crow; Committee of 15 Is Named to Frame the Platform.

Special to The Courier.

PHILADELPHIA, June 2.—Governor Spruiell was expected to be endorsed unanimously for the presidential nomination at the caucus of the Pennsylvania National convention. The caucus opened this afternoon and was preceded by the reorganization of the state committee.

State Senator William L. Crow of Fayette county said a unanimous endorsement would be given Governor Spruiell if he so desired. Leaders believed there would be no effort on the part of Senator Knox's friends to cast their vote for him if the committee is called to endorse the governor.

United States Senator John Penrose was re-elected a member of the Republican National committee. Senator Crow was re-elected state chairman, W. Harry Baker, secretary, and Charles Johnson, treasurer.

There was no opposition to the reelection of Chairman Crow nor the reelection of Mr. Baker as secretary or Johnson as treasurer.

Mr. Crow, in his speech, said a defeat had never been recorded against the present officers of the committee and he asked the cooperation of all Republicans to roll up the largest majority in the coming campaign that had ever been given a candidate in this state. He said there had been some bitter fighting in the recent primary but all differences had been ironed out and he hoped the rank and file would at the dead past bury its lead.

A committee of 15 was appointed to draft a platform.

In addition to endorsing Governor Spruiell the convention delegates will elect Senator Penrose chairman of the delegation. The selection of a vice chairman was in doubt, though the outcome rested with Governor Spruiell. Friends of the governor do not believe a should be given this office because of the embarrassment to him when called upon to announce the vote of the Pennsylvania delegation for himself.

It is generally conceded that Senator Penrose, if he goes to Chicago, will not attend sessions of the convention and the duties of handling the Pennsylvania delegation on the convention floor will fall to the vice chairman. Mayor Moore and Senator Penrose are mentioned as possibilities for vice chairman.

SIX MEN ARE KILLED BY BLAST IN COAL SHAFT AT COKEBURG

By Associated Press.

PITTSBURGH, June 2.—At least six men were killed by an explosion in the coal shaft of the Ontario Gas Coal company, near Cokeburg, Washington county, Pa.

The men were buried under tons of earth and the foreman in charge of the work said he would not be able to tell the exact number of dead until the bodies had been recovered.

The men were employed by the recently formed Ontario Gas Coal company in sinking a shaft for coal and had reached the top of the coal late yesterday. Soon after they went down the shaft today to resume work there was an explosion which dislodged a great mass of earth and buried every man in the shaft.

The explosion was heard throughout the entire section and mines employed in other mines hastened to the spot. Life saving apparatus of the Bureau of Mines was brought into use but was of no avail.

Forces of volunteer workers were quickly organized to dig out the buried men.

First reports to the Pittsburgh station of the Bureau of Mines were vague as the shaft is some distance from telephones and reports sent out by nearby mining villages were that 30 or 40 men had been killed. Officers of the station left here this afternoon for the scene of the accident.

Bonniwell of Philadelphia.

Mr. Bonniwell who distributed tickets at the primary, seeking the nomination of W. G. McAdoo, said that saloons and bonded warehouses in some parts of the state were now running wide open and that this was proceeding under the eyes of the Department of Justice and prohibition enforcement officers of the federal government appointed "with Mr. Palmer's approval."

The witness charged that the Palmer campaign in Pennsylvania had been a "ghostly and defacing degradation of law." Attempt to Enter Warehouse Frustrated; Uniontown Officers Pick Up Suspects.

The men were picked up by the Uniontown police and city detective.

ALARM DOES ITS WORK

Automatic Gong Connected With Lock on Door of Storeroom Sounds When Effort Is Made to Enter Sacking off the Highwaymen; No Whisky There.

The men arrested gave their names as Charles Cooley of Fairchance; Ray Rubie, Rubie's Mills; Louis Mollness, Akron, O.; Fretts Carlson, Dinsmore, O.; Richard Barrett, Los Angeles, Cal.; William Hatfield, R. C. Pond and Andy John, Uniontown. Cooley and Rubie have been released.

Last night about midnight eight men, driving an Essex car bearing an Ohio license, stopped in front of the distillery and some of the party inquired the time. The watchman found himself surrounded and overpowered. His gun and $50 were taken from him.

While some of the party kept him covered with a gun the others went to work on the warehouse door. The lock was connected with an alarm, which sounded. The hold-up party heard the alarm and were frightened off.

The night operator at Scottdale notified the Uniontown police, saying the car was believed to be headed toward that place. The officers had rounded up eight men by 4:30 o'clock this morning. A gun found on one of them was identified today by Shaffer as the one taken from him. He said he could not positively identify the men, but thought two of them were the ones who held him up.

He said the warehouse which the highwaymen endeavored to enter was empty. An empty pint bottle, bearing an Old Farm label, was found on one of those arrested. A thorough investigation is being made.

MAY NOT USE SIDEWALKS

Merchants Must Remove Display of Goods From Streets.

The sidewalk is not to be encroached on in any way, the mayor said, and the officers are to carry out said, and the officers are to carry out said, and the officers are to carry out said.

It has been the practice, especially of fruit dealers to use a portion of the sidewalk in front of their stores as a display space. The mayor declares the walks of the city are small enough without being narrowed still more by boxes of goods on display.

Fruit dealers and other merchants with goods on display are being ordered to use fly screening. Instructions to this effect have been received from Harrisburg and Health Officer Heitzel will see they are carried out.

WEDNESDAY EVENING, JUNE 2, 1926.

CARNIVAL CENSORSHIP.

While the elimination of evil in any form to which the youth of Conneltsville may be subjected is desirable and is a commendable act upon the part of those who bring about the removal, the idea still persists in the minds of many persons that prevention is still better than the application of remedial measures. Applied to carnivals this means that keeping them out of the city is to be preferred to trying to make them be good after they have come in.

Inasmuch as censorship, as thus far practiced, amounts to nothing more than exacting a promise that a certain class of attractions will be closed and kept closed, the acceptance of part of the censors of such an agreement takes more of the nature of a compromise on the carnival proposition than persistence in an effort to free our city of this class of public entertainment.

The objection a very large element in our population has to carnivals may be calmed but it cannot be removed by an attempt to censor the attractions. As an institution the street carnival has acquired a reputation, too often well deserved that its presence in a community subjects the young people to forms of temptation they might otherwise escape. True, there may be good carnivals and bad carnivals, just as there are good people and bad people, but the experience of Conneltsville and all other cities and towns visited by carnivals is that they differ more in degree than in kind; and that all of them, good, indifferent and bad, tend to create an atmosphere which is neither wholesome nor beneficial in its influence upon the young. For this reason, which is itself sufficient, parents have the right to object to having them exhibit.

Censorship of certain attractions may serve to minimize the pernicious influence of carnivals as amusement enterprises but it is a well-established fact that the exposure of previous attempts to regulate the shows, once the carnival is on the ground and ready to exhibit, has been more apparent than real. During the former visits of carnivals, to which so-called censorious regulations were applied, objectionable attractions and crooked gambling games have been conducted. Not openly, of course, but under a sort of camouflage. We are not saying the carnival now exhibiting here comes within that category but we are advertising to the fact that previous efforts to completely cut out all undesirable and unlawful features have not accomplished the purpose as fully as the censors have been led to believe. Furthermore, the truth of the age-old adage about the children of the world being wiser than the children of light has again been proven, rather than that the Egyptian has changed his skin or the leopard his spots, or that the character of the carnival has been suddenly and completely transformed.

No matter how well meaning the censorship or how implicit may be the faith in the efficacy of the methods employed to restrict the evils of carnivals, those who trust to this means of rendering them harmless are more apt than otherwise to be placed in the somewhat embarrassing position of having "one out over on them."

Such being the situation, with respect to carnivals in Conneltsville, that element in our citizenship which has consistently opposed this form of amusement enterprise must have recourse, not to a censorship of carnival features but to a censorship of the institution itself, through its complete elimination, or what may perhaps be still better the substitution of some more acceptable means of raising funds for the purpose to which a certain percentage of the receipts are applied.

JUSTICE TO POSTAL EMPLOYEES.

Bureaucracy, particularly that type represented by the Postoffice Department, cannot take to itself any credit for the long deferred grant of an increase in remuneration to postal employees. While government officials have been uttering meaningless and ineffectual platitudes about the right of workmen to join unions to bargain collectively and to demand wages in proportion to the constantly increasing costs of living, the employees of the postoffice have been shamefully neglected. Through the aid of friends in Congress this class of employees is now to come to its own, despite the hidebound opposition of the Postoffice Department to liberal treatment of its employees. Obsessed as Postmaster General Burdison has been with saving at the expense and was acting at the expense in his administration both of the department and during the miserable fiasco he made of so important a service, he has utterly failed to take care of them of his own household. The utter inconsistency of the refusal of the department to provide adequate pay for men in the postal service is shown by the fact that temporary employees were paid 50 cents an hour, or 184 cents more than men who were classified as permanent and who had become qualified by years of experience. Even at the temporary rate it was found difficult to secure substitutes except for short periods. The regular employees, to a remarkable degree, remained faithful to the government, and have gone along in their work hoping that in due time the justice of their claims for better pay would be granted. The government has accorded them little sympathy and still less encouragement. It has overlooked the fact that the postal service draws men of steady habits and, for the most part, men having an appreciative sense of accommodation to patrons. Most of them enter the government employ with the intention of making it their life work. They take their work seriously but are always cheerful in their courtesies and faithful to an exacting degree. They have long deserved better treatment at the hands of their employer. The country generally will rejoice that justice is at last to be accorded them.

Attorney General Palmer betrays evidence of his mild and gentle Quaker training by the manner and form of the complaints he hands out to Louis F. Post, assistant secretary of labor and mediator of the self-confessed anarchists.

The imposition of sentences on the shoe and clothing profiteers in different sections of the country is showing that the courts are confirming the opinion of customers that 100 to 150 per cent profit is just a trifle beyond the limit of a safe margin on sales.

With 13 Democratic Senators voting against the amendment it looks to some people as if the White House had been given a mandate for its own exclusive use and benefit.

Equal Rights and

Philadelphia Ledger

If employers and employed could by some miracle of common sense declare an industrial and social moratorium for a period of three months and decide to get along reasonably with each other, hearing with, if not each other's burdens in the strictly Scriptural sense, one would not need to be a prophet to predict that the country would be thrice blessed and would afford a lesson in tranquility to the whole world. But since such a miracle is not likely to happen overnight and that it is to do the common-sense thing does not seem to be strikingly in evidence either among the employers or the employed producers or consumers, it is evident that we shall have to continue to use such regulations as we have set up to check the offending capital on one side and restrain the irresponsible fomenters of trouble among the employed on the other.

Whether the economic outlook be favorable or otherwise it is worth while noting that the National Association of Manufacturers believes that the time has come when organized labor as well as organized capital shall have the same status before the law. Of course, it is not yet clear what will be the final effect of the decision rendered just one year ago in the Bach-Denman Coal Company case in which the Federal Circuit Court of Appeals at St. Paul decided that unions national and local, though unincorporated, could be held accountable for damages and losses growing out of strikes. But the moral idea back of this equitable decision is voiced in the platform of the Manufacturers Association, and one hardly needs to run over the appalling statistics as to the high cost of strikes and lockouts and labor disturbances generally to be convinced that some way of common agreement for common purposes that look to the protection of the individual and society in the large must be adopted.

In view of what is happening now all over the country the plea of the manufacturers for equality before the law and that the same principles of conduct must apply to all classes of citizens should meet with sympathetic response. And while drives are not exactly popular the drive that the manufacturers propose in the shape of a "national campaign for industrial peace and common sense in connection with the slogan of 'an honest day's pay' as the simplest and best platform for employer and employee and public alike ought to appeal to every one. It is about time that agitation for the sake of agitation should be outlawed. A drive for a return to common sense and a reasonable acceptance of common responsibility might easily produce, therefore, the about-face in our industrial and business relations that sane thinkers here would spell stability and prosperity for all.

THE SICK MAN.

Stretch out a hand to him though poor he seem.

Time was he cherished youthful hopes and dreams.

Time was he woke at morning just as you.

To think of splendors that his hand might do.

And though the outer partment shows him a status.

Perchance some beauty of his soul remains.

Stretch out a hand to him! To be his friend.

May be your own great virtue at the end.

Kindness to sinners does not breed disgrace.

More shame to him who turns away his face.

Help him to rise who falls beside the way.

As you to God for help are moved to pray.

Stretch out a hand to him! Were he or sorely hurt, with him you would romane.

Did some mischance strike him a stunning blow.

Without delay unto his aid you'd go.

Well he is sick at heart, or stunned by fate.

And needs your help, but lo! you hesitate.

Pots of Gold Everywhere.

Philadelphia Record.

It is the opinion of the New York Sun that "if young Bergdolt had worked his imagination a little harder he might have told a convincing 'War Department' he knew where Captain Kidd's treasure was hidden and thus won a summer holiday on Long Island."

But why confine his outing to Long Island? Captain Kidd is supposed to have had more than one cache for his treasures along the Atlantic seaboard. With the War Department in the present complacent mood the draft-dodger ought to have been able to visit every summer resort from Bar Harbor to Old Point Comfort.

THE MAN WHO WASN'T HIMSELF

BY ROBERT AMES BENNET

COPYRIGHT, BY W. G. CHAPMAN.

Psychic! Baffling! Mysterious! Amusing!

It was a mental case that puzzled the great brain specialist, Dr. Kirkland. He was quite sure that the man wasn't himself. The man was equally positive that he was. The solution is very hard to guess. At times it looks as though all the characters might be a little daff. You will finish with a sense of satisfaction in a thoroughly up-to-date story which introduces a novel theme, some very odd situations and highly amusing complications. Will appear serially in these columns.

OLD-FASHIONED BIB APRONS

Accessory is Constructed of Contrasting Material; Embroidered When Fabric is Plain.

There is considerable use of little aprons on skirts, according to a Paris fashion writer. Madeleine at Madeleine, whose place on the Champs Elysees has met with even more success this spring than it experienced at its brilliant opening last year, and whose collection of early summer models is remarkably beautiful, show many dresses with little old-fashioned aprons with bibs. They do not make these aprons of the same material as the frock, as one might suppose, but use a contrasting material. If it happens to be an embroidered fabric no additional trimming is used, but if the material is plain, the apron is embroidered. Among these models, too, is seen the 1880 sash and the short balloon sleeve. Some of the dresses having these are made with high collars, which seem to be favorites with these designers. It was Madeleine at Madeleine who introduced the high wire collar last spring, using it on evening dresses as well as on blouses.

His Blessing.

A sergeant was so much given to using bad language on the parade ground that some of the men complained and the C. O. interviewed him, and told him not to let it happen again.

The following morning the sergeant was in charge of a very ragged squad, and after keeping silence for a considerable time, he eventually burst out with:

"Bless you, my pretty dears; you know what I mean."—The Bita.

HOUSE DRESS

Many and varied are the materials for house dresses but quite the dearest are the voiles that come in so many pretty patterns and weaves. Here lavender dotted voile is combined with crisp white organdy. The collar is most original and will appeal to many as a very becoming style.

THREE GAMES IN A ROW THIS WEEK FOR THE TROTTER TEAM

March on the Schedule For This Afternoon, Edenhorn Thursday.

KIRLEYS HERE SATURDAY

With three solid days of ball arranged to take place today, Thursday and Friday, the members of the Trotter team are in a jubilant frame of mind. It is anything but a surprise to know that the Trotter team will play Monday at the latter place. Tomorrow the Trotter team makes another jump to Edenborn. The big game of the week will be that with the Hostetter team at Hostetter.

CHURCH

Youth Coal was defeated by a pick-up team in Lower Tyone township, the score being 5-3 in favor of the pick-up team at the picnic held at Dawson fair ground on Saturday in honor of the school children. The Youth Coal team will play next Saturday at Layton.

A picked team from Dawson and vicinity met the Florence baseball team at the Dawson driving park Saturday afternoon and defeated them by a score of 5 to 2.

George Young, who pitched the final game for the Independents Monday, is suffering great pain in his arm and hand from stopping a left line drive.

With the coming of the J. B. Kirleys of Pittsburgh Saturday, the Independents are in for another hard game of ball. The Kirleys have been going at a fast clip lately. On Memorial Day they played the fast Koppel team of near Ellwood City and got an even break in two games. This means that the local tossers will have to be at their best for the visitors, as very few teams are getting by with the Koppel bunch.

After the big game Monday evening at Fayette Field Dennis Johnson's famous team of this city defeated the Uniontown A. C. in a 4-0 shut-out. The game went seven innings. "Jingling" Johnson, pitcher for the locals, twirled a fine no-hit game.

Ralph Herrod, the slim-built pitcher from Pittsburgh, will again join the Independents on Saturday. Herrod made a wonderful impression on the fans of this city.

Something will have to be done to get the Connellsville Baseball club off the "out." While the games are paying for themselves, the club is not getting in enough money to pay for the stands that were erected. This should be paid by the citizens themselves, as the stands belong to the city. One big item that knocks the gate receipts home is the war tax. This puts a big dent in the receipts of every game. Quite a few asked to contribute to the fund to erect the stands and equip the team have failed to come through with their bit.

Arrangements are being made to try and get the Homestead Greys here for June 12.

of Fayette Field, will show their wares here on the 7th.

OHIOPILE WINS TWO.

Ohiopile defeated Snyderstown in two games at Ohiopile on Memorial Day. In the first game the visitors lost in the opening inning, the home aggregation scoring seven runs. After that both teams played good ball. The score of the first game follows: Ohiopile 7, Snyderstown 3. In the second game: Ohiopile 2, Snyderstown 1. Batteries—Cruthers and Lytle, Bailey and Gallagher.

BOXING.

Billy Carter, the local boxer, was matched yesterday to meet K. O. Billy Angelo at Altoona, on the evening of June 11. It is no fault of Carter's or his manager that Billy does not get more bouts. He has received offers from Detroit, Harrisburg, Wheeling and other cities for bouts, accepting them all, but when the match makers try to line up the other fellow they stop before they begin when they learn that it is Carter they will box.

Freddy Kelly, the Greensburg badger of boxers and promoter, was a visitor here a day or two ago to match his boy, Ray Pryel, with "Allentown" Dundee, at one of the boxing shows that will be held in Uniontown this summer.

Harry Greh, the Pittsburgh boxer, who got himself in wrong with the fight fans of his home town, will go through another tilt with Clay Turner in Philadelphia tonight. Other bouts on for this evening's cards include:

Atlantic Ties Distance in a Hard Knot

Up and off on a holiday morning, "over the hills and far away." With your tank filled with Atlantic you're sure of all the speed you ask and full power like a flowing river. Here's why—

Atlantic all burns. It vaporizes fast and thoroughly. It puts a knuckled force into your cylinders that makes the pistons work like nailers. Atlantic is all fuel. It shakes hands with the spark and every drop changes into wallowing energy. It does not dilute your lubrication as does an unbalanced fuel by leaking into cylinders and crankcase.

Atlantic doesn't foul engines. It doesn't foul carburetors. Once your carburetor is set, you can forget it. For the hills there's range in Atlantic that cuts out the tinkering and quarrels between fuel and carburetor about altitude. You keep going—in high.

Old motorists bank on Atlantic, because they know it is quality—through and through. They pull up at the Red Pump where the Atlantic sign says, cordially

THE MAN WHO WASN'T HIMSELF

ROBERT AMES BENNET

COPYRIGHT BY W. G. CHAPMAN

CHAPTER I.

Will of the Wisp.

As he sauntered from the train in the rear of the hurrying crowd of his fellow passengers there was nothing peculiar in his appearance. His clothes were in good taste, his manner quiet and well-bred, his look intelligent, pleasant and indifferent. On the whole he gave every indication of being a manly and attractive young gentleman. He walked with the resilient step of an athlete in training—and in his mid-twenties.

The gatekeeper told him where he could check his suitcase. He started across the arcade to enter the depot. From outside the iron fence an elegantly dressed young fellow beside the nearest train waved a hand to him and called familiarly: "Hello, old man! Didn't know you were returning—what the deuce?"

The traveler, after a moment's quizzical scrutiny had started on into the depot without betraying the slightest sign of recognition. The young elegant who had called to him flushed and bit his lip. As quickly his shallow gray-brown eyes hardened and he recovered his nonchalant pose. With a swift-glance that was masked by the utter lack of hurry in his manner he slipped through the gate and across the arcade into the depot.

The sight of the man he had addressed brought him to an abrupt halt. He turned aside behind a pillar and paused to light a cigarette. The traveler was at the checking counter depositing his suitcase. Having received his check he turned away with the bearing of one who is in a strange place with no particular desire to do anything.

Before he had taken half a dozen steps he was rushed by a middle-aged man who might have passed for a promoter or a clubman of rather pronounced tastes. "Why, howdy, Mr. Lowrie! Back in Denver again I see, and looking fit as a fiddle. Glad your stay east has done you so much good."

"You are slightly mistaken," replied the traveler, ignoring the other's outstretched hand. "I do not happen to be a comer on and I care neither for a little game nor a gold brick, thank you."

He went out through the main exit of the old depot leaving the man who had accosted him agape and blankly disconcerted.

The traveler tensed with the upwelling of his energy. He noted the line of taxicabs drawn up outside the depot grounds, and started forward, brisk and purposeful. At the same time a small touring car that had been standing beside the curb before the ladies' waiting room curved around and rolled smoothly out across the block, pavement toward the Welcome arch.

Car and pedestrian reached the crossing at the same time. The driver a portly gray-haired gentleman, tooted a warning and swerved over on the crossing. Checked by the sound of the horn the traveler came to an abrupt halt and stood poised waiting for the automobile to glide past.

The elderly driver was too intent on steering the machine to give further heed to him. But the motorist, led by the rear seat looked in his direction and met his gaze full and direct. Instantly she flung out her hand and leaned toward him her face aglow with surprise and delight.

"Will!" she cried. "Stop, Karl, stop! Don't you see Will!"

The car came to a stand within its own length and the dignified driver twisted about to peer at the traveler. As he met the young man's look of well-bred annoyance his joyful astonishment became clouded with doubt. But the doubt vanished and left him beaming with cocksure delight.

"It is Will!" he exclaimed. "Most unexpected! Such a—"

"My dear Will! My dear boy!" broke in the lady. "To think that you—"

For the first time the traveler rallied from the half daze into which he had been thrown by this sudden attack. "I beg your pardon, madam," he interrupted the lady. "You have rather the advantage of me. Evidently you mistake me for some friend who has been away."

He smiled as if in sympathetic amusement, but the others a once became grave. The lady gazed at him in shocked surprise. The gentleman replied to him with dignified irritation.

"This is no occasion for practical jokes Will. Very unlike you! Merely because you have grown a mustache is no reason why you should—"

"One moment, sir," broke in the young man and he drew out his card case. "My name is Clinton—Richard Clinton. I am a stranger in Denver."

"It won't do won't do, Will!" irritably rejoined the older man. "You've changed a great deal—wonderful improvement. But of course it's all owing to your complete recovery. Never saw you look so rosy. There's a resemblance in your voice—It's no use, it's feeling the Boston accent. You can't disguise your voice."

"Sir, it is you who insist upon a practical joke because of a fancied resemblance," declared the young man his blue eyes glinting with annoyance.

"Fancied!" exclaimed the lady. "I beg your pardon, madam," he replied, and he presented his card to her. "As you see, my name is Richard Clinton. I am on my way through to the Coast and am stopping over in Denver only for the change of cars."

"Ah, yes, to be sure," she murmured, her eyes on his card. "So stupid of us. Pray pardon me a moment."

She turned her shoulder to him and leaned forward to hand the card to her portly companion.

"Oh! what can it be, Karl?" she whispered. "See!—to have had cards engraved! He really seems to be serious, and it's so unlike him to joke. Can it be possible that his loss of memory—that it has failed entirely?"

The bushy eyebrows of the gentleman came down over his keen eyes, and his face clouded with concern. "Possible! Possible!" he muttered. "Amnesia—dissociation—secondary personality! My dear, it's not only possible, it's highly probable! And I thought he was joking, poor boy!"

"Hush! Leave it to me. We must detain him. He cannot be allowed to leave town."

"No, no!—while in this state—impossible!"

The lady turned to the young man with an air of gracious apology. "Mr. Clinton, you hear my husband. We cannot allow you to leave the state without first having made amends to you for this—this annoying mistake."

"Pardon me, rather, for my rudeness," he hastened to reply.

"It must have seemed to you so important," she insisted. "Only, you see, our friend—Will Lowrie, you know—"

She paused expectantly, but his clear gaze betrayed no more than polite attention. She stung up her hand in a little gesture of bewilderment. "You are Will—and yet your expression—Pardon me, but if only you realized what an extraordinary resemblance! . . . As I was going to say, Mr. Lowrie has been away more than half a year. He was quite ill when my husband took him east. This—it is as if he had come back to us strong and well."

"A perfectly no mistake," the young man good humoredly reassured her. "Two persons between whom there is only a moderately close resemblance are often mistaken for one another when apart, though their differences, once they are together, may be very noticeable."

"But you and Will—" she replied. "Even after your explanation I have to refuse to believe my own eyes. I have no doubt that my husband, as well as myself—Pardon me I am Mrs. Kirkland and this is my husband Mr. Clinton—Doctor Kirkland."

The young man met the introduction with a manner nicely balanced between well-bred reserve and cordial warmth. He bowed to the lady and stepped forward alongside the car to grasp the chubby hand of the physician.

"It is a happy case of mistaken identity that gives me the pleasure of your acquaintance," he remarked.

"Very!" agreed the physician, masking his diagnosing scrutiny under a benevolent smile. "The pleasure is not all yours Mr. Clinton."

"Indeed, no, Mr. Clinton," vivaciously confirmed the lady. "Even if it were for no more than your resemblance to Will—It's simply absurd how like you are. I have to keep reminding myself that you are not he. It makes me feel quite as if you were an old friend. How long did you say you expect to remain in town?"

"My train leaves shortly before midnight."

"Not tonight?"

"Yes."

"But that never will do! You say you are a stranger in Denver. You must stop over a few days at least to see our beautiful city. You are not hurried by business?"

He hesitated. "Denver has the name of being a cold town to strangers."

"That is a baseless calumny, as we shall prove to you," she declared with redoubled graciousness. "Since we have become acquainted in this delightfully unconventional manner you must pardon the unconventional offer of an invitation to dine with us on such short notice."

"It is most kind of you," he acknowledged. "But my trunk—"

"No, no; just as you are—quite informal," she forestalled his objection. He could not resist her cordially. "Since you are so kind!"

"Jump in!" directed the physician with an urgency almost peremptory. Smiling in response to the general cordiality the traveler opened the door of the car and took the seat beside the lady.

Doctor Kirkland was too careful a driver to have any glances to spare for his passengers after he had guided his car up through the business streets of the city to one of the most quiet of the Capitol hill avenues.

They went on a few blocks south and then more swiftly eastward. At last the physician brought his car to a stop at the curb before a residence set in a plot of emerald green that merged with the lawn of Congress Park.

"Here we are—home!" said Mrs. Kirkland, in a sprightly attempt to win some indication of remembrance from the young man at her side. "No doubt Ellen will be awaiting us."

Her companion's look spoke only of polite inquiry. The mention of home and of Ellen had alike failed to stir him. She concealed her disappointment with difficulty.

"I referred to my daughter," she explained. "Ellen went on a motor ride to the foothills with Amy—Miss Lowrie, you know—and some of their girl friends."

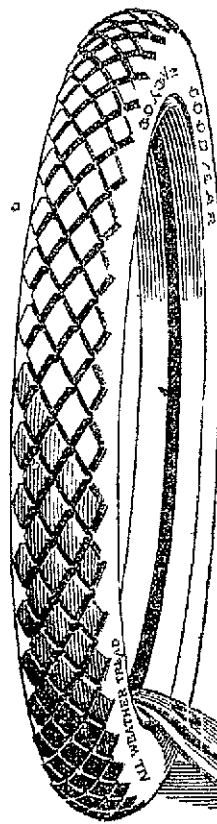

Again she looked closely into the face of her companion. But the name of Amy Lowrie brought no flash of memory into his frank blue eyes. He stepped down to hand his hostess from the car.

A neat little maid came darting from the front porch of the house down across the sloping lawn to the parked sidewalk. "Doctor," she called, "here's a phone message. Urgent case at the sanitarium."

Why a Majority of the Smaller Cars Come on Goodyear Tires

Last year more cars using 30x3-, 30x3½-, or 31x4-inch tires were factory-equipped with Goodyear Tires than with any other kind.

This is plainly a result of the high relative value produced in these tires for the smaller cars by Goodyear's enormous resources and scrupulous care.

They represent the same intense endeavor to supply utmost satisfaction in tires that has laid the basis for the marked preference which exists everywhere for Goodyear Tires in the larger sizes.

This real Goodyear value in tires is available for your Ford, Chevrolet, Dort, Maxwell, or other car using one of these sizes, at our nearest Service Station. Go there for these tires and Goodyear Heavy Tourist Tubes.

URGES PEOPLE TO FIGHT CATARRH WITH SIMPLE HOME MADE REMEDY

Can Make Pint at Home and Costs Little, Says Leading Druggist of Covington, Ky., Who Has Made Special Study of Catarrh.

Says: Inflamed Nostrils Invite Influenza

People who say that catarrh is a disease not to be taken seriously, are harshly rebuked by a Kentucky druggist who has for years been much interested in the growth of this loathsome, yet altogether too common disease.

He claims that the sore, tender, inflamed membrane of the nostrils and throat is a prolific breeding ground for germs—not only the germs of influenza, but many other kinds as well.

If people would only stop experimenting for two weeks and try a simple remedy made of Mentholized Arcline mixed with enough boiled water to make a full pint, half of the catarrh in this country would be abolished.

It's really no joke for people who don't know about this simple recipe to be constantly sniffing and snuffing, blowing and hawking, when all these obnoxious symptoms as well as the foul discharge can be made to disappear in a few days.

Ask for three-quarters of an ounce of Mentholized Arcline—that's all you need and after you have mixed it with enough boiled water to make a pint, gargle the throat twice daily and sniff or spray some up the nostrils, as directed.

The tender nostrils will soon lose their soreness, heal up, and be clean and healthy.

Important Reminder: Just as soon as anyone in the family gets a cold in the head, check it at once with this same medicine.

FATHER BRENNAN URGES EDUCATION FOR CITIZENSHIP

"Now, Bad, Inhuman Philosophy" Should Not Be Allowed to Poison Minds.

MUST CONSERVE CONCEPT

Father T. J. Brennan delivered the following memorial address at Dunbar Monday, May 31, to a great concourse of people:

When we speak of citizenship we mean, of course, our traditional American citizenship, that choice flower of our public life from George Washington to Abraham Lincoln. Its roots are still intact and its high spirit is still abroad, wherever the world shaping documents and facts of our political life are known and honored. That citizenship is the heir of the best thought, and the widest world-experience of mankind from Athens to Westminster, and in one short century realized the longings of all lovers of liberty, east and west, through the ages. In one hundred years American citizenship has renewed the political face of the world and if there be yet a few convulsive struggles of oppressed mankind, it is largely owing to the very fact of American freedom that there are political convulsions and that the just claims of oppressed peoples are not formally and definitely extinguished.

Yesterday, it was Brussels, Belgrade, Prague, that stretched out taping hands to Washington as to their only hope in face of conquering Prussian imperialism. Today the world is noisy with the clamor and protests of other oppressed peoples whose love of liberty is as keen and as just, and whose subjection cannot be defended on any but Prussian principles of imperialism. In a few generations our American citizenship, this lively American sense and practice of our public rights and duties, has subdued a whole continent, has overcome all obstacles that nature and ignorance could offer; has interpreted, purified and elevated itself amid gigantic tasks of material development; has fully assimilated several foreign human stocks; has rejected many brilliant temptations to walk the paths of opportunism and error; has kept substantially sane and true its judgment of all public life outside its own limits; has cherished on all sides a spirit of healthy progress, social unity and moral elevation; has followed the ways of peace though not in lofty servility or selfishness; has contributed richly to the arts and sciences, and to every phase of intellectual life.

In a word American citizenship has made the world happier and better in many ways, and in turn has never ceased to absorb the best that the world had to give, whether man-power or brain power.

If this be a true description of American citizenship, it follows first that it needs no apology for its present condition and temper; second, that we must not tolerate any obstacles to its normal beneficent action. The new heresies that sin against the traditional or usual concept of American citizenship should be followed up, challenged and destroyed root and branch as anti-American, and thereby inimical to the general welfare of mankind.

The new, bad and inhuman philosophy of life and government which has come among us quite recently should not be allowed to poison the minds of our youth, under the specious but dishonest pretext of free thought and free speech.

We must conserve and perfect our American concept of virtue, private and political.

As to the world-burden imposed upon our American citizenship we shall best meet its demands by the development of those national traits which distinguish us amid the scenes of conflict. The American citizen will be over unselfish and self-sacrificing in face of the urgent needs of suffering humanity, but he will not be lacking in prudence, good sense and moderation. He will not substitute himself for those who can and ought to work out their own salvation, nor become the common carrier of the sorrows and woes of all mankind. In the coming years as the new political order of Europe develops, he will need to walk warily to avoid entanglements in a world habituated to them and want to free itself by ways and means that are not congenial to American citizenship. That citizenship must hold its own in the world by its traditional spirit and principles, concerned first with its own security and identity, and watchful ever lest its fibre be changed and a pure humanitarian service and temper take the place of our national conscience, self-respect and domestic obligations. After all, the best security for American education and thereby for American citizenship is religious training. For this we have the authority of George Washington in his farewell address.

Doctor Cupid

That love sometimes cures disease is a fact that has been called to the attention of the public by a prominent physician. Love is not, however, the cure for all women. Many a woman is nervous and irritable, feels dragged down and worn out for no reason that she can think of.

Doctor Pierce's Favorite Prescription gives new life and new strength to weak, worn-out, run-down women. "Favorite Prescription" makes weak women strong and sick women well. It is now sold by all druggists in the United States in tablets as well as liquid form.

BRADFORD, PA.—"Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is an excellent tonic for women. Some time ago I became all run-down, weak and nervous. Was miserable when I began taking 'Prescription,' and three bottles completely built me up and made me feel like a different person. It so improved my nervous system that I can give it the very highest praise. It was the means of improving my health in every way."—Mrs. J. H. WINGARD, 26 York Street.

"WHO'S YOUR SERVANT?"—With an all star cast, is today's feature attraction.

The servant, while trying to gain information of a highly confidential nature by means of theft, does not scruple also at attempting to steal the affections of the girl, who becomes horrified as she learns of the duplicity of the man. The big theme of the picture moves around her struggles to get back the papers which the valet has stolen, and at the same time escape from his room, to which she has gone to assure her recovery of the stolen articles.

An all-star cast is seen in "Who's Your Servant?" Included in it are Louis Wilson, Yukio Aoyama, Andrew Robson, Albert Morrison, William Scott and Frances Burnham.

THE SOISSON.

"IN OLD KENTUCKY."—One of the most magnificent photoplays yet produced with Anita Stewart in a delightful role, is being shown today. With a vast and gorgeous panorama of the "blue grass" and mountain life in the early Kentucky—the fox hunt, the moonshiners, fierce and lasting feuds, the "Night Riders," the Kentucky derby, the amiable old colonel with his mint julep, colonial homes and mountain passes—the imagination should be tremendously stirred and great vistas of romance are opened up. Another delightful factor in "In Old Kentucky" is the absence of stardom for stardom's sake. To be sure, Miss Anita Stewart carries the work and the honors of the principal role. She makes a sweet and likeable Madge Brierty.

SCIENTISTS MAKE NEW CASTOR OIL REALLY TASTELESS

Remarkable Process Improves Famous Old Family Remedy.

Nobody ever dreamed that castor oil could be made tasteless. But the chemists of Spencer Kellogg & Sons, Inc., one of the largest manufacturers of castor oil, tackled the problem and succeeded in perfecting a process by which the taste is absolutely removed. Today everybody can take castor oil easily, for Kellogg's Tasteless Castor Oil is really tasteless. Nothing is put in to disguise the taste. Strength and purity are unchanged. Castor oil, healing, and soothing qualities remain the same. It's the same good, old-fashioned castor oil that your doctor always prescribes, with the taste removed. Children take Kellogg's Tasteless Castor Oil easily. No bribing or coaxing. You can now get Kellogg's Tasteless Castor Oil at all good druggists. Do not accept substitutes, if you want a really tasteless castor oil. Insist on Kellogg's Tasteless Castor Oil. Two sizes, 35c and 65c.—Adv.

Speaking of Bridesmaids

A PRETTY and conservative dress of net and net-top lace, to be worn over a colored underslip, is an American design that will commend itself to the bridesmaid at a June wedding. This same dress with white netting, will interest the bride who does not want a conventional wedding dress, but does wish to be married in white, requiring only that her frock be pretty and then practical enough to do her some good after the wedding.

There are many white dresses—of georgette, voile, crepe-de-chine, net or organza that such a bride may choose and lace of some kind is nearly always a part of them. In making a selection for a bride one must remember to look for dignified designs, but for bridesmaids this is not so important.

The dress shown above has an underskirt of plain net with a wide hem. Over this there is a tunic of lace flouncing and over this again, net on at the sides, pointed drapery of plain net, with a narrow frill at the top. The lace is used for the kimono bodice fitted in at front and back with a "Y" shaped piece of tucked net. The three-quarter length sleeves are finished with pointed flounces of net edged with narrow Irish lace and the girdle is made of wide satin ribbon. For a bridesmaid the girdle will be in the color used for the underslip and will be pretty if finished with a large flat blossom made of the ribbon.

There is nothing prettier or more practical than taffeta in light, flower-like colors for bridesmaids' dresses and they are enchanting when quater styles are chosen for them and scarves or Belton of tulle worn with them. It is in her maid's frocks that the American bride follows the lead of fancy. There is nothing like taffeta for freshness and spiritfulness. Sometimes it serves as a foundation for much airy tulle drapery and flowers stumpy belong to it, possessing kindred charms. There is every chance of success when taffeta is chosen for bridesmaids and the gay frock at the wedding begins its journey along the primrose path of festivities and parties.

Airy, Summer Frocks

Lovely Dresses for Children's Day

All the charm of childhood has been caught in these nets so fine and sheer and in the organdies of a crispness to delight their wearers, or in the voiles and other airy cottons which have been fashioned into such beautiful little dresses for the younger girls, who will wear them to the grade commencements, to garden parties and for Children's Day which is so near.

In addition to the cottons there are fleecy crepes of Georgette or crepe de chine, ribbon and lace trimmed with wide sashes and lacy cotton effect waists.

Young girls will revel in these lovely frocks which are shown in white and flesh, light blue, maize, peach, rose and Nive green, in sizes 5 to 14 years and priced from
